36 Hours: 'To Do'

36 Hours: To Do - Thumbs Up

It is impossible to see and do all the magnificent artwork and architecture in Paris within a few days. Here are some top visits. 36 Hours is quite limited so planning is required.

 Be sure to buy tickets / entries online for every place you go. This is an absolute.

- Cruise on the River Seine - One of the Best! Choose carefully and select the Best Seine River Cruise. I enjoy a cruise on the river. A cruise is excellent to view diverse architecture of the city. Take a smaller cruise boat and avoid the traditional large Bateaux Mouche. Select a cruise boat and select a time near sunset, which is perfect to recover from a day of sightseeing.

- Walkng Tour in English - of which there are many. Be sure to tip your guide a couple euros or up to five euros if you like them.

- Visits
    - Paris Raspail Organic Market - Amazing Parisian Organic, Fresh Market. It is similar to Farmers' Markets in the US.

    - Eglise Saint Sulpice is one of the most significant churches in Paris, located in the 6th Arrondissement. Construction began in 1646 and continued into the 18th century, resulting in a grand Baroque and Neoclassical architectural masterpiece.
    - Cathedrale Sainte Chapelle Sainte-Chapelle is a stunning Gothic chapel located within the medieval Palais de la Cité on the Île de la Cité in Paris. It was commissioned by King Louis IX (Saint Louis) and completed in 1248. Originally built to house precious Christian relics, including the Crown of Thorns, Sainte-Chapelle is renowned for its extraordinary stained glass windows and its architectural beauty.

Top Two Art Museums in Paris

 recommended

- L'Orangerie - one of my top favorites. The grand attraction are the Murals of Claude Monet, “Water Lilies.” Don't miss the underground exhibitions. They are quite special.
- Musée d'Orsay - one of my two favorite museums in Paris. Certainly not a “hidden gem” but the works are magnificent. Take the elevators up to the top floor to enjoy the impressionist paintings and slowly work your way down the the awesome sculptures.

The Best of the Rest

- Le Musée Rodin The Musée Rodin Paris, France, is an art museum that was opened in 1919, primarily dedicated to the works of the French sculptor Auguste Rodin. It has two sites: the Hôtel Biron and surrounding grounds in central Paris, as well as just outside Paris at Rodin's old home, the Villa des Brillants at Meudon, Hauts-de-Seine. The collection includes 6,600 sculptures, 8,000 drawings, 8,000 old photographs and 7,000 objets d'art. The museum receives 700,000 visitors annually.
- Le Petit Palais - a reasonably small museum with a small restaurant, toilets and places to sit on a balcony overseeing a wonderful garden. I would not say that it is a place 'worth a detour' but if you are in the area, do stop and enjoy.
- Musée Louvre - Exceptional. You can spend days in this enormous palace. I hesitate to recommend Le Louvre to first time visitors. There is so much to see, and almost certainly, your attention will grow weak after a couple of hours. A visit is very fatiguing and quite confusing because of the enormity. Careful planning is necessary, and plan on a half day to visit.
- Mussée Jacquemart-André oops. Closed until 6-Sep-2024. The Musée Jacquemart-André has the finest private collection of art works in Paris, combined with the atmosphere of a large nineteenth-century residence. The Jacquemart-André Museum contains collections worthy of the greatest museums: works from the Italian Renaissance, works by great Flemish masters, French works from the 18th century. Short half day visit. The restaurant ambiance is amazing. Food is OK and expensive.

36 Hours Not To Do - Thumbs Down

- 12 Things Not To Do in Paris by a Local
- Versailles - a magnificent opulent palace, home to King Louis IV and of course Marie Antoinette. Take a train of 1 hour, 1 hour return, stand in line for several hours, stand looking at fancy old stuff, if you become hungry, eat bad food. Basically, a visit to Versailles is one very long day, guaranteed to make you totally wiped out and in need of a full day to recover. Still interested?
- Dinner Cruise on the Seine - no. Please do not. Bad food, bad service. Expensive. Why not take a cruise then eat at a good restaurant?
- Eiffel Tower - Um. OK. The only way to remotely enjoy is to buy advance tickets online and arrive early. Be prepared to wait, even in a fast lane. I've been there many times and won't go again. Sorry. Oh yeah. Summer of 2024, it might be closed. Check before buying an online ticket.
- Cabarets and Night Clubs - [meh. Go if you want]. Iconic Cabarets are Moulin Rouge, Crazy Horse or Le Lido. Fine if you like to watch bare-chested, tall Eastern-European girls dancing around in feather costumes while you eat / drink overpriced offerings. Terrific for graduating male High-School students.

Crêperie

A crêperie restaurant is fabulous for lunch and very accessible for visitors. Best crêperies are described here The 9 best crêperies in Paris. Avoid the street crêpe makers because they make many crêpes ahead. If you must go for a street vendor, ask for a fresh crêpe. Tell the guy [usually a guy] that you want to take a photo of him making your crêpe. If he still does not want to make a fresh one, say “desole” and find another who will.

1. Une gallette - savory buckwheat 'pancake' such as a gallette complète, traditional with ham and egg.
2. Une crêpe - an eggy sweet and a simple [my favorite is une crêpe au citron] or fancy with whipped cream and chocolate.
3. A bottle of cidre brut for two [don't worry, it contains alcohol but about as much as beer]. Cidre is served in traditional handmade ceramic bowls or cups.

36 Hours: Sleep

Places to stay tend to be expensive near tourist attractions, less costly farther away. But consider time on transport if you stay far from the center of Paris. You could spend more than one hour per day of your precious time on the metro. Hmmm.

Specific recommendations are difficult to make. Hotels vary and short-term rentals vary.

Be sure to book your place to stay well in advance for the summer of 2024. There are rumors that there are more openings this summer of 2024 but let's not take the risk, eh?
