

Drinking Water in France

France is known for its high-quality drinking water, which is widely accessible. Whether you prefer tap water or bottled water, there are plenty of safe and affordable options to choose from.

1. Tap Water in France

- Availability: Tap water (eau du robinet) is available in all homes, hotels, restaurants, and public spaces unless stated otherwise.
- Quality: French tap water is strictly regulated and considered safe to drink throughout the country, including major cities like Paris, Lyon, and Nice.
- Taste: The taste can vary depending on the region due to differences in water sources and mineral content.
 1. In some areas, tap water may have a slight chlorine taste, which is safe but can be noticeable.
- Cost: Free. In restaurants, you can request tap water by asking for a “carafe d’eau” (jug of water). By law, restaurants must provide free tap water if requested.
- Sustainability: Drinking tap water reduces plastic waste compared to bottled water.

Tip: If you dislike the taste of tap water, consider using a water filter like Brita to improve its flavor.

2. Bottled Water in France

France has a rich tradition of producing high-quality bottled water, both still (plate) and sparkling (gazeuse). Bottled water is widely available in supermarkets, convenience stores, restaurants, and vending machines.

A. Types of Bottled Water

- Eau Minérale Naturelle: Natural mineral water, sourced from underground springs, often with unique mineral compositions.
 - Eau de Source: Spring water, naturally sourced but less regulated for mineral content.
 - Eau Gazeuse: Sparkling water, naturally carbonated or artificially added with gas (CO₂).

3. Cost: Around €0.50–€1.00 for a 1.5L bottle.

2. Volvic:

1. Source: Volcanic region of Auvergne.
2. Taste: Very soft and neutral, low in minerals.
3. Cost: Similar to Evian.

3. Cristaline:

1. Source: Various regional springs in France.
2. Taste: Clean and neutral. Popular for its affordability.
3. Cost: About €0.20–€0.50 for a 1.5L bottle (one of the cheapest options).

4. Vittel:

1. Source: Vosges mountains.
2. Taste: Slightly mineralized, refreshing.

2. Sparkling Water (Eau Gazeuse)

1. Perrier:

1. Source: Vergèze in the Gard region.
2. Taste: Bold bubbles, refreshing and slightly salty.
3. Cost: Around €0.80–€1.20 for a 1L bottle.

2. Badoit:

1. Source: Saint-Galmier in the Loire region.
2. Taste: Fine bubbles, smooth, light mineral flavor.

3. San Pellegrino:

1. Source: Italian Alps (popular in France).
2. Taste: Strong bubbles, slightly salty.

4. Salvetat:

1. Source: Southern France (Occitanie).
2. Taste: Light bubbles, refreshing. Affordable option.

3. Low-Mineral or Specific Waters

1. Contrex: High in minerals like calcium and magnesium.
 2. Hepar: Known for its high magnesium content, often used for digestive benefits.

C. Cost of Bottled Water

• Supermarkets:

1. A 1.5L bottle of still water (e.g., Cristaline) costs as little as €0.20–€0.50.
2. Premium brands like Evian or Volvic cost around €0.50–€1.00 per 1.5L.

3. Sparkling waters like Perrier or Badoit cost approximately €0.80–€1.50 for 1L.

- Restaurants and Cafés: Bottled water costs significantly more:
 1. A small bottle of still or sparkling water (0.5L) can cost €2–€5 depending on the restaurant.

3. Where to Buy Drinking Water

Bottled water is widely available across France:

- Supermarkets and Hypermarkets: Carrefour, Leclerc, Intermarché, Monoprix, Auchan.
- Convenience Stores: Smaller shops like Franprix, Carrefour City, or Casino.
- Vending Machines: Found at train stations, airports, and public areas.
- Restaurants and Cafés: Offer bottled water or a carafe of tap water.

4. Quality and Safety

- Both tap water and bottled water in France meet strict European Union standards for safety.
- Bottled water quality varies based on mineral content but is clearly labeled with “composition analytique” (mineral analysis) on the bottle.
- Tap water undergoes regular testing and monitoring to ensure safety.

5. Environmental Considerations

- Tap Water: The most eco-friendly and cost-effective option. Use a reusable bottle for travel.
- Plastic Bottles: France has recycling systems in place, so always recycle plastic bottles in designated bins.
- Glass Bottles: Some premium water brands offer glass options for better sustainability.

6. Summary

Type of Water	Examples of Brands	Taste and Quality	Cost	Where to Buy
Tap Water	N/A	Safe, regional variations	Free	Everywhere
Still Water	Evian, Volvic, Cristaline	Smooth, low minerals	€0.20–€1.00/L	Supermarkets, cafés
Sparkling Water	Perrier, Badoit, Salvetat	Refreshing, various bubbles	€0.80–€1.50/L	Supermarkets, restaurants
Specialty Water	Contrex, Hepar	High minerals for health	€1.00–€1.50/L	Pharmacies, supermarkets

Recommendation: If you are visiting France, tap water is the most convenient, safe, and eco-friendly choice. For bottled water, Cristaline is affordable, while Perrier and Badoit are excellent sparkling options.
